General Report

To the Citizens of Deering:

The job of our schools is to help each child become a better citizen than he would have been if he hadn't had an opportunity to go to school. This has also come to mean that we have to try to develop each child into the best possible citizen.

A first responsibility of each citizen is to learn to gather and use to the very best advantage, all the information and skills he is in need of. This means that although all children have common needs, some children might have different needs than other children because they may have very different abilities and interests and therefore should obtain special help.

We know that all children don't get their first tooth at exactly five months of age, take their first step at exactly eleven months or say their first word at exactly sixteen months. But the age at which most children do any of the above is called the normal age for that particular accomplishment.

School to most parents of first graders is a place to learn to read. That's because most children can learn to read at about six years of age. Many learn earlier or later than six. Our school programs now recognize these differences in children and try to help each one according to his needs, through the whole twelve years of school; twelve years of preparation for citizenship.

A second responsibility of citizenship is to practice and understand the democratic process which makes life in these United States, the best in the world. If the schools had done a real job, over the past forty years, of letting children practice and really learn the meaning of democracy, we would not now be having such noisy witch-hunting for sub-normal citizens who apparently don't cherish democracy.

Therefore, although it may be almost too late, schools are trying to teach the democratic process so that children will understand and love it for its true values. This school process means that we may have to give up some of the old-time rigid lock-step type of education. The price we're paying for that old type of "schooling" is beginning to show up in some of our leadership problems on the state and national level, where the average individual doesn't understand enough about democracy to make it work at all. We are still going through the motions of a democratic life however and the schools may have time to redevelop the fundamental understandings necessary for our survival as a democracy.

These thoughts are used here to point out a present severe problem in education so that citizens may look on pupil committees, etc., as real experiments in real democracy at the child level. It is not an attempt to promote child-centered schools but only a last attempt to really teach the democratic way of life. Children won't learn these things while reading about the Civil War, etc. They have to experience this way of life. When more people really understand democracy, the whole world may become a better place to live.

If it should seem to some then that the old days of the hickory stick were better, we may remind them that we may well be near to losing our truly democratic way of life because not nearly enough people really understand and love this way of government. Education has failed miserably to serve its primary purpose, that of improving citizenship. Some schools are making real progress towards democratic living.

The Budget

Looking over a bulletin of the State Board of Education, we find that the average expenditure for educating a pupil in New Hampshire schools in the 1939-1940 school year was $119.90 and that in the 1948-1949 school year this figure rose to $229.49. We must remember that this was an average cost so that many pupils must have received much more than that in dollars of service. Against the state average of $229.49 our average cost here in Deering was about $170 per pupil for all grades, including tuitions and transportation.

I have a very certain feeling that state wide costs for this year will show a still greater increase than locally for we are striving desperately to keep them down.

Our most serious problem is of course due to the fact that all our tax money has to come from real estate. Three hundred years ago, real estate was a good tax base because it was from real estate that most people made their living. Now one can make more money from brief cases, small offices, stock certificates, etc.

Our 1949 legislature failed to catch up with this three hundred years old tax system. So we have to keep our schools going at current prices for everything and the property owner pays all.

Any mention of the past legislature concerning education should be couched in terms of veneration for they carefully took the state backwards thirty years to the old state aid formula and then appropriated less than 20 percent of the money needed. We have no statistics as to the total harm done to education by their non-inspiring actions but the results will certainly show up unless property owners can shoulder the tax burdens brushed off by that legislature.

If Dr. Edgar Fuller's 1947 State Aid plan were still the law, Deering would perhaps be getting nearly $6000 but now we're getting little more than half of that in state aid.

Hillsboro has been even more seriously affected by this loss in state aid — they lost $13,300. Therefore they have had to raise their tuitions to make up for some of this terrific loss. In the school budget we've had to ask for $1600 to make up for the tuition for this year. Actually it is $2000 that we needed but we have saved $400 in other places so that we are asking for $1600. Then for next year, tuitions will cost more and we expect more tuition pupils so we've had to ask for $9580 for tuitions alone. This doesn't allow for any extra pupils. If any move in, we'll have to ask for a deficiency appropriation next year. In 1948-1949 our total tuition bill was $5877.17. For next year, Hillsboro will charge $150 in the first six grades, $190 in the Junior High and $210 in the High School.

Our dependable transportation system will still cost us the $3880 because of the wisdom of your school board in negotiating a three year contract. A recent article from the Arkansas State Department of Education discloses that just from 1937 to 1947 the costs of textbooks rose 63 per cent. Since 1947, experience indicates that labor costs for printing and binding have increased about 20 per cent; paper costs about 22 per cent and cloth about 12 per cent. This is an example of just one rise in cost, concerning school items.

The major installations at East Deering are now completed, including the new driven well. The new well flows at a rate of better than ten gallons a minute and is drilled to a depth of 254 feet from the cover of the well. The new deep well pump and tank are all installed in the old well. A faucet with frost proof shut-off was installed on top of the well to afford an automatic water supply when needed in the vicinity of the schoolhouse.

Conclusion

It has been a great inspiration to work with Mrs. Rich, Mr. Fales and Mrs. Herrick of the School Board. They have worked unceasingly to make available to Deering children the best of school facilities which can be purchased for the money available. As may be noted from this report, we have had considerably less than the average amount to spend and yet by comparison we have provided considerably above average educational opportunities to the pupils.

Such conscientious work by a school board would warrant the highest praise in many communities. Naturally, no educational program can prosper without the attention and care of the parents and friends of democracy in the community. It is together then, that we must consider these children, our present investment in the world of tomorrow.

Respectfully submitted,

STEWART V. McCORMACK,
Superintendent of Schools.
